Land Acknowledgement

The land has always provided and sustained life and will continue to do so for years to come. As staff of the principals' associations, we are aware that we live, work and derive benefit from the ancestral lands that have always been home to the Anishinaabek and the Omushkego Peoples, the inherent right-holders of these territories. As a partner in public education, I have a duty to learn, understand and redress the historical and ongoing impacts of colonialism.

Individually and collectively, we have a responsibility to reconcile our relationship with the land, the Anishinaabek Peoples and the Omushkego Peoples.

I acknowledge that I am on the traditional territory of nations within nations including the Anishnaabe, the Ojibwe and the Michi Saagiig, land which continues to be home to many diverse First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples.

I am grateful for the enduring presence of Indigenous peoples as past, present and future caretakers of these lands on which I work and play.

I am committed to continue to deepen my understanding and learning about my role and how I can work toward decolonization as an individual and as part of a community. I am grateful to those who are my teachers and my partners.

Going Deeper: Leadership Moves for a Critical Inquiry Approach

Leading the Implementation of the Ontario's Revised Language Curriculum

Key Changes – Introduction

- The curriculum emphasizes the foundational knowledge and skills in both oral and written language that are necessary to support more complex skills such as critical thinking and problem solving.
- The curriculum provides educators with a comprehensive guide to supporting the development and growth of these essential knowledge and skills for every student.

Leadership Moves

Provide guidance on how to navigate the online curriculum site and how/where to access information (e.g., grade references, resources, glossary and available downloads).

Engage staff in reading and reviewing the "Program Planning" section of the curriculum (Planning Considerations, Cross-curricular and Integrated Learning, Transferable Skills). Gather feedback on confirmed knowledge, new learning, and questions/wonderings.

Review the curriculum Key Changes chart \(Ministry of Education\) with staff. Collect feedback to inform your next steps (areas which align with current practice and those which require new learning to shift in practice).

Create a literacy leadership team and co-construct an initial plan of action. Ensure the plan includes voices from each division, special education, English Language Learners, Kindergarten. Leverage current teacher leadership and expertise, including the Teacher Librarians. Ensure the plan includes a cross-curricular approach to literacy.

Consider how your current professional learning structures (e.g., staff meetings) could be maximized to support curriculum learning and implementation.

Incorporate literacy-focused goals (student centered) in your School Learning Plan.

Take time to review and discuss the Effective early reading instruction: a guide for teachers \(ep.on.ca\) with all primary educators.

With the leadership team, review Language, Grades 1 to 8: a guide for parents \(gov.on.ca\) and determine initial steps to engage parents/guardians/school community.

Sample Questions for Staff Inquiry

"Where" does the new curriculum introduce the most new learning for our team? How might we prioritize professional learning goals within achievable steps, allowing time to reflect on shifts in practice through student learning outcomes and student feedback? What will success "look like" and "sound like" for our students?

What types of learning opportunities would be most helpful for our school to support implementation of the new curriculum?

In what ways could we offer educator collaborative learning opportunities? What could these opportunities look like?

How might we differentiate content and utilize principles of universal design for learning and culturally responsive and relevant practices to support/advance educator learning?

How will we leverage the diverse expertise and knowledge of our staff to offer varied and responsive professional learning opportunities? Who else (e.g., central team) could support our school-based learning and planning?

How will we ensure equitable and inclusive access to educator learning? How will we identify and address barriers to learning?

How will we gather feedback from our staff to ensure the professional learning context, supports and structures are responsive to educators and their students?

How will we ensure that parents/guardians are informed of the new curriculum changes and have opportunities to work collaboratively with our school staff as valued partners in their child's education?

Examples of Evidence of Impact in School/Classrooms

Collaborative structures (e.g., Literacy Lead team, divisional and grade teams) are organized.

Educators have been provided with opportunities to share input to inform school planning and professional learning goals.

Initial school/classroom goals are centered on improving student experiences and learning outcomes.

Professional learning opportunities (e.g., staff meeting sessions) are scheduled with initial learning goals and success criteria determined.

Expertise of current staff has been determined. Other supporting central staff have been contacted for consultation/support.

A collaborative culture of learning is emerging whereby educators are:
-seeking opportunities to co-plan and co-learn
-demonstrating a learning stance by asking questions, beginning to reflect on initial shifts in programming/assessment, challenging one another to consider diverse and divergent perspectives.

Schools engage with parents/guardians throughout the new curriculum implementation.

Gain a deeper understanding of key changes in the Ontario Language Curriculum, Grades 1 to 8 (2023), with a focus on:

- Culturally responsive and relevant assessment and evaluation

Consider culturally responsive leadership practices within a critical inquiry approach to support implementation of key changes.

How will I lead the implementation of the language curriculum?

The idea of an inquiry stance is that we're constantly asking ourselves the question, what is the impact of this leadership move that I just made? Or that I'm about to make? Or what is the potential impact of this teaching move that I'm about to make or that I just made? We're always thinking about the impact of our actions of the moves that we're making.

Human Rights, Equity and Inclusive Education

Ontario's education system, at all levels, must respect diversity, promote inclusive education, and work towards identifying and eliminating barriers to equal treatment in education that limit the ability of students to learn, grow, and contribute to society. Discriminatory biases, harassment, non-inclusive environments, lack of accommodation, systemic barriers, power dynamics, societal poverty, and racism make it difficult for students to acquire the skills they need to be successful, competitive, and productive members of society.

Ontario Curriculum, Considerations for Program Planning

Human Rights, Equity and Inclusive Education

Considerations for program planning

Human Rights, Equity, and Inclusive Education

How will we ensure that literacy assessment and evaluation is intentionally anti-oppressive and anti-discriminatory and takes a student's intersectionality of identities into account?

SCAN ME

Program Planning \(gov.on.ca\)

What's on your mind?

What would you like to learn about assessment, evaluation and reporting in the revised curriculum?

What questions are educators asking?

What is affirmed and remains the same?

- All curriculum expectations must be accounted for in instruction and assessment, but evaluation focuses on students' achievement of the overall expectations.
- Teachers will use professional judgement to determine specific expectations to be used to evaluate achievement of the overall expectations, and which ones will be accounted for in instruction and assessment but not necessarily evaluated.

Screening, Assessment and Evaluation

Assessment is the process of gathering information that accurately reflects how well a student is achieving the curriculum expectations in a subject or course.

Evaluation refers to the process of judging the quality of student learning on the basis of established criteria and assigning a value to represent that quality.

Screening refers to an evidence-based early reading tool that identifies students who may have future difficulties with reading. Effective early reading screening tools are comprehensive and will assess each foundational reading skill against a benchmark, have good psychometric properties (i.e., reliability and validity), aggregate student data, and provide immediate information so it can be used by teachers to inform instruction.

Assessment “for” Learning.....

- How can we ensure assessment is a process, rather than an event?
- Which components of the process do we regularly use? Is there one that we can focus on enhancing?
- How can we ensure assessment is a learning approach, rather than an add-on?
- Do we have a clear and common understanding of the purposes of assessment FOR learning?

Adapted from the Ministry of Education Webinar: “Assessment and Evaluation”.

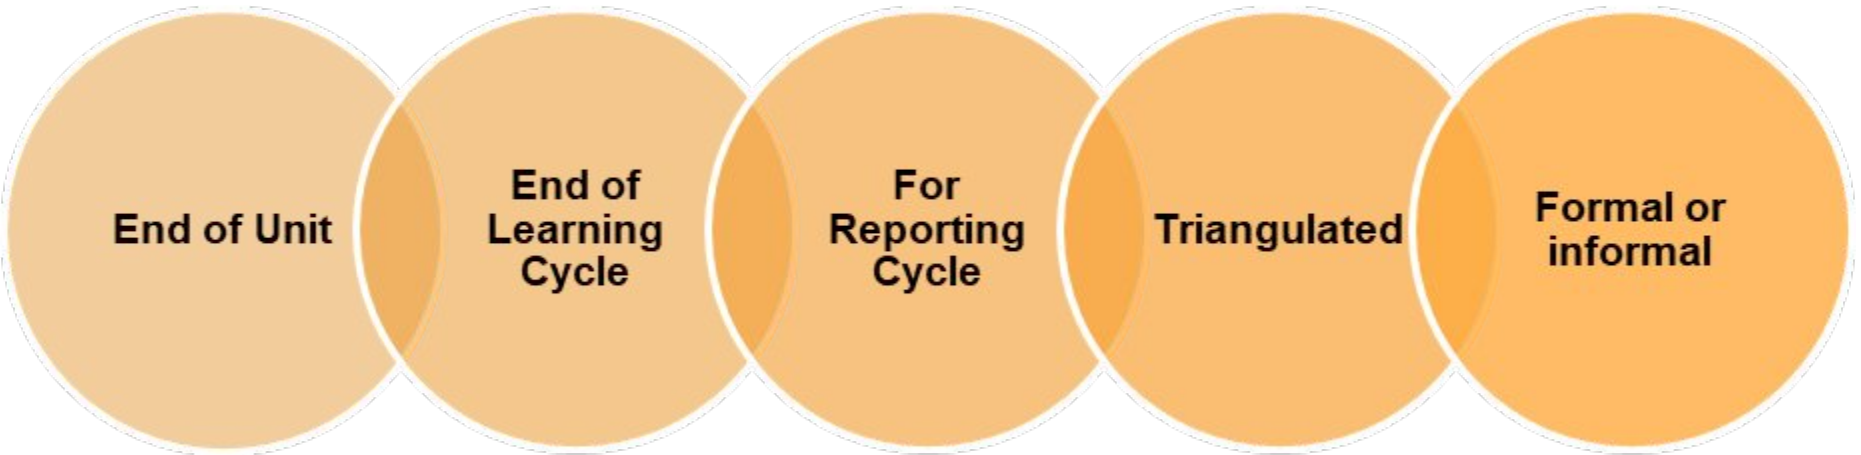

Assessment “as” Learning.....

- What are some ways we can encourage and support learners to develop agency in language class?
- What might be some specific steps we can take steps to guide students to become reflective and to assess their own learning?

Assessment “of ” Learning

- How will we ensure that assessment and evaluation practices are fair, transparent, culturally responsive and relevant?

Demonstrating Learning in Multiple Ways

The language curriculum is founded on the principle that every student can become an effective communicator. It recognizes that students come from diverse cultural and linguistic backgrounds, bringing unique identities, abilities, and resources to their language and literacy learning. The use of a Universal Design for Learning framework and differentiated instruction and assessment foster an environment that is inclusive and accessible, with high academic expectations for all students.

Differentiating Classroom Assessment

DIFFERENTIATING TRIANGULATION

Adapted from Triangulation, Fair Does Not Mean Equal by Aleda Klassen

Culturally Responsive and Relevant Assessment and Evaluation Practices

- Tasks should be accessible to, and inclusive of all learners and include appropriate and varied entry points for all students.
- Tasks connect to students' prior learning and give them opportunities to be sense makers and to integrate their new learning. Selected tasks reflect students' identities and lived experiences.
- Students have equitable access to the tools they need to complete the tasks.

- Teachers build opportunities into their practice to offer students descriptive feedback to enhance learning. Graded assessment tasks are used in a way that complements the use of descriptive feedback for growth.
- Information is conveyed about students' learning progress to students and parents in an ongoing and meaningful way.
- Student choice and agency are considered.
- Teacher biases do not influence decisions about what tasks or activities are chosen for assessment.

Comments:

- should describe significant strengths that the student demonstrates
- should identify next steps for improvement
- can describe growth in learning
- can make reference to particular strands, and should include comments on the foundations of language, including reading and writing.

Consolidating Thinking

Reflect on the information shared so far:

- What has been confirmed?
- What is new learning?

Principal Voice

- How are you supporting educators to shift to one mark/grade for this reporting period?
- What are the common questions educators are wondering about?

Shifting to One Grade/Mark in Language

- Actively listen and engage in conversations with staff
- Affirm educator knowledge and experience
- Clarify key terms
- Engage in co-learning with staff
- Provide time for professional learning and collaboration

Principal Voice

- Build in opportunities to work with central staff/literacy facilitators
- Network with colleagues at principal meetings
- Review assessment data as it becomes available

Challenges

Leadership Moves

- Revisit the language program (integrated approach for strands A to D).
- Discuss the implications for assessment and evaluation.
- Provide time for educators to co-plan learning goals, success criteria and assessment tasks/opportunities which prioritize integration across language strands and/or other integrated subjects.

Examples of Evidence of Impact in School/Classrooms

Collaborative structures (e.g., Literacy Lead team, divisional and grade teams) are organized.

Educators have been provided with opportunities to share input to inform school planning and professional learning goals.

Initial school/classroom goals are centered on improving student experiences and learning outcomes.

Professional learning opportunities (e.g., staff meeting sessions) are scheduled with initial learning goals and success criteria determined.

Expertise of current staff has been determined. Other supporting central staff have been contacted for consultation/support.

A collaborative culture of learning is emerging whereby educators are:
-seeking opportunities to co-plan and co-learn
-demonstrating a learning stance by asking questions, beginning to reflect on initial shifts in programming/assessment, challenging one another to consider diverse and divergent perspectives.

Schools engage with parents/guardians throughout the new curriculum implementation.

Inquiry Question and Evidence of Impact

Possible Inquiry Question:

How will we ensure that assessment and evaluation practices are fair, transparent, culturally responsive and relevant?

Inquiry Question and Evidence of Impact

Possible Evidence of Impact Indicator:

Classroom assessment and evaluation is varied in nature, provides multiple opportunities for students to demonstrate their learning and offers opportunities for students to self-select strategies and tools (including conversations, observations and products).
